

2015 Herdsman Open Winners

Debra Sandoval and Nicole Brockreide

Brock's Fallen Ear's Rabbitry

Brock's Fallen Ear's Chippawa

Brock's Fallen Ear's Jamboree

Brock's Fallen Ear's Carson

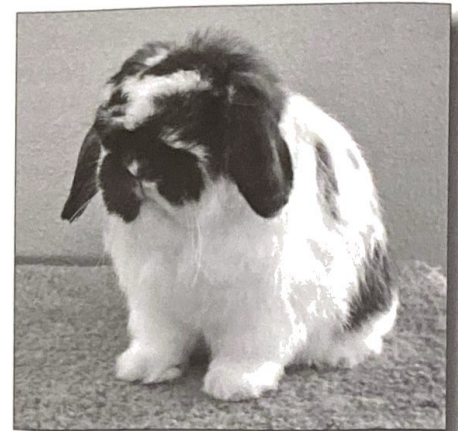

As I sit to write this, I am wondering what I haven't already said in the previous Herdsman articles.

Perhaps I should explain how Herdsman is achieved. Unlike the Top Lop contest, which is the accumulation of points for a specific animal in a year, the Herdsman contest measures how many different Hollands that a breeder wins Best of Breed or Best Opposite of Breed with, in the year. You must be producing juniors that are as good or better than their parents to win this contest, as well as be willing to leave at home established champions.

It has taken hard work, and long hours of driving, breeding, cleaning, culling, and showing. It is significant to me that after 28 years, we still look forward to sharing our love of Hollands with the good friends we've made, and new friends we continue to make.

We are grateful to contribute to the quality of Hollands shown across the country and love sharing our passion with so many wonderful people.

Debra and Nicole

Brock's Fallen Ear's Pomegranate

Brock's Fallen Ear's Colorado

Brock's Fallen Ear's Sinatra